

SPORT TALK

One of the two open dates on the Tiffin football schedule may be filled at the Athletic Committee meeting tonight. Several schools have asked for a game, among them Northwestern, which was highly pleased with the Missouri game this year.

Kansas will go to Champaign next fall, October 7, to open the season with Illinois. A practice game for the Illini.

Coach Beau Olcott of Kansas, having finished the football season with a win over Missouri, has announced that he will wed Miss Evelyn Dutton Flogg of Portland, Me. The ceremony will be in New York City December 22.

The Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association experienced the most successful year in football in the history of the organization. Splendid teams were turned out by the coaches, the race for the championship was close and the games were given good support in all the towns.

A new game, which is a combination of football and basketball, is being tried at Cornell. "Gridiron" is the name of the new sport. It is played with a rugby football on a regular gridiron, by teams of eleven men, but has some likeness to basketball. Running with the ball for more than five yards is illegal, tackling below the waist is forbidden and frequent passing of the ball is encouraged. The game may be developed to take the place of soccer in collegiate sport at Cornell.

DOLLS A-LA MODE FOR CHILDREN

M. U. Women Dress Them in Latest Style for Hinkson Mission.

Fifteen dolls lying in state in the matron's room in Academic Hall may prove that the domestic virtues still survive in the women of the University. The dolls have been donated and dressed by the girls under the direction of the Y. W. C. A. for the children of the Hinkson Mission.

Most of the dolls have at least one change of costume, varying from a bathrobe to a silk afternoon gown; sport caps and scarfs share honors with the latest coiffures.

In addition to these preparations, the Y. W. C. A. will give a Christmas tree for the Hinkson Chapel. Magazines for reading room are always in demand.

BOOSTING THE PARCEL POST

Ashland Postmaster Brings Producer and Customer Together.

From the Kansas City Star.

Paul A. Calvert has been postmaster of Ashland, Boone County, Mo., less than a year, but he perhaps could give many postmasters, years his senior, points on building up the parcel post business. Yesterday his office shipped by parcel post to Kansas City alone more than five hundred pounds of pork backbones, spare ribs, sausage, lard and white oak land sorghum.

Mr. Calvert, in Kansas City today, is boosting business—bringing consumer and producer together by way of Ashland, where the fourth-class postmaster gets a per cent on all business.

"Well, suppose I gave you an order for twenty-five Christmas turkeys—turned in twenty-five names, could you fill all the orders?" asked W. N. Collins, Kansas City postmaster.

"Just try me if you think I can't," Calvert replied. "I would go to the telephone and call up the farm wives and have the turkeys in the office next morning ready to go out on the first mail.

"If I hear of anyone at Ashland using express for any of these products I go to them and tell them that up to fifty pounds in weight they can ship their butter and eggs and meat and sorghum to Kansas City or St. Louis for just four cents more than the number of pounds. That brings them. They can remember that rule easily.

"Not long ago I was down in St. Louis. I got acquainted with the postmaster and some others in the city and have been helping the farmers market their products there ever since.

"I guess we have shipped forty gallons of white oak land sorghum to Kansas City alone since September 1," he said. "They put it in a regular gallon syrup pail, and it goes for 15 cents a gallon. I am going to help the farmers in my locality market all their surplus products by parcel post."

He has never used the "C. O. D." plan yet, he says. Some of the city customers keep a deposit with him, while others get the indorsement of their home postmaster that they are good for the amount and send in their orders.
